A Weekly Newspaper Devoted to Furthering the Civic and Rural Interests of the Whole of Washington Township

51 YEARS OLD

AROUND the TOWNSHIP

This is another one of those Friday, the 13th, folks. Watch your step if you are unlucky.

Company is coming, so we gotta dress up!

Washington Township will soon be given the O-O by visitors from all parts of our country and—if you can believe the press agents—from many other countries when they begin arriving for the Golden Gate International Exposition on Treasure Island which opens on February 18.

And, the visitors will keep coming until the close of the event on December 2. Therefore, it behoves the residents of this area to get their homes in order—and the business places, too.

The Niles Chamber of Commerce has started the ball rolling. All the rest of us have to do is clean up and plant up. In the matter of planting, W. B. Kirk and E. A. Ellsworth have offered to supply marigold plants and gladiola bulbs. The rest ought to be easy. Time is short. Let's get going and "Shine for '39".

There was a lot of digging going on at the site of the old Vallejo Mill at the entrance of Niles Canyon last week. Three men appeared before Barney Baiochi who had had a vegetable garden in that vicinity and wanted to buy for $100, the digging rights. No sale, said Barney, but you can dig.

A hole four-feet deep failed to reveal any treasure and the men departed, unknown and unheard from since. They said they had a map locating money buried there many years ago by some of their ancestors.

Most of us are victims of habit. And, too large a percentage of automobile drivers have gotten into the habit of careless parking of cars in the streets of the communities of the township.

Most common offense and most noticeable is the wrong way parking cars. Because no serious accidents have occurred directly from this practice, doesn't make the habit any safer.

So, we get out the needle and thread and take a stitch in time.

Turn to the back page right now, lest you forget. And, if you have data on any of the "Firsts" the ladies of the history committee of the Country Club of Washington Township need for their book—let 'em have it.

NILES COUPLE WILL HAVE QUIET WEDDING TOMORROW EVENING

NILES—Resolutions commanding the work of local peace officers under Sheriff M. D. Driver of Alameda County, the Sheriff and Capt. Harry Adams of the Hayward office were passed at Monday's meeting of the Niles Chamber of Commerce. Deputy Sheriff Henry Vervais of Niles was particularly lauded for his efficient service since he has been stationed here during the past year.

Secretary A. J. Petsche was instructed to write Sheriff Driver regarding this action. Copies of the letter will be sent to Vervais and Adams. The matter was mentioned by President W. B. Kirk and F. V. Jones made a motion regarding the letter, seconded by Dr. T. C. Wilson.

The chamber voted to accept the invitation of the Parent-Teachers Association of the Niles Grammar School to have luncheon at the school cafeteria and Feb. 13 was set as the date, pending approval by the P. T. A. The ladies are to be invited.

H. L. Scott again brought up the matter of beautifying Niles prior to visitors enroute to the exposition which opens in San Francisco next month. Kirk said he has several hundred marigold plants which would be available to those who wished them and E. A. Ellsworth said he would have gladiola bulbs later.

The matter of cleaning up Old Town was again discussed and the secretary was instructed to contact the City of San Francisco to see what help could be secured. Whitewashing of buildings and fences was suggested.

Secretary Petsche gave a report of activities of the chamber for the past year. Highlights of the report were as follows:

Delegates sent to the Golden Gate Exposition meeting last January; $18.05 paid for Christmas tree lighting; cooperated with P. T. A. dinner at Niles School for Niles Fire Department; delegates attended Southern Alameda County Fair Association as directors; appropriated $20 for ad in Oakland Tribune Year Book; renewed membership in State Chamber of Commerce for $10; paid $4.80 to have hedge on First street trimmed; signed contract for two Neon signs at total of $172.06; spent $9.50 for advertising and $6 for folders for National Air Mail week; paid $6.02 for membership cards; took out membership in Southern Alameda County Musical Association for $10; donated $10 for Boy Scouts; secured pedestrian crossing lanes at Vallejo Street and Niles Canyon road.

The Chamber secured 55 paid up members and disbursed $434.54. Other projects in which the Chamber was active during the past year included improvement of telephone service, endeavored to locate new tractor equipment plant here, reported highway conditions to State Highway Department, worked in the interest of improvement of Niles Canyon highway for which $250,000 has been appropriated and $250,000 for Niles-Warm Springs Highway; recommended white line for center of First Street to reduce traffic hazard; instrumental in having Niles-Alvarado road improved.

BENEFIT WHIST WILL ASSIST VICTIMS OF DISASTROUS FIRE

CENTERVILLE—A benefit whist party for the Claire Bettencourt family at whom tragedy struck last Saturday morning when three months old Rosalin Bettencourt was burned to death and the home and all its contents destroyed by fire, will be given at the Washington Union High School on Friday night, Jan. 27.

Neighbors and friends are sponsoring the affair, the total proceeds of which will be turned over to the stricken family. Wilbur Bettencourt (no relation) is chairman and sub-chairmen include Mrs. Wilbur Bettencourt, Mrs. Janice Silva Reina and Mrs. D. Gastelum.

George Mathiesen will act as treasurer and all funds will be deposited at the Centerville Bank of America where they will be audited and publicly reported before being turned over to the beneficiaries.

The public is invited to attend the whist party at which scores of prizes are being offered. It is expected to be the largest party ever given in the township and is being managed by committees which recently put on a party for the Washington Township Sportsmen attended by nearly 1,000 people. Tickets will be on sale this week.

First Concert By Music Association Next Monday Night

CENTERVILLE—The first of a series of four free concerts by the Southern Alameda County Musical Association will be given by the chorus and orchestra at the Washington Union High School next Monday night. The public is invited.

The concert will begin at 8:15 o'clock and is free to the public. Harry Tripp, music director for the Pleasanton public schools and director of the San Jose Opera Association, will direct the chorus and orchestra. Assisting artists include Mrs. Catherine G. Brownell, soprano; Edward J. White, violinist; Richard M. Coughlin, all of Hayward; Henri Salz and members of the Eight-Hand Club of Centerville and Mrs. Oscar DeReschke, soprano, of Pleasanton.

The program includes the following numbers: Chorus and orchestra, "Tales from the Vienna Woods," by J. Strauss; three folk songs, "Sweet and Low," "All Through the Night," and "Annie Laurie"; "Hear My Prayer," by F. Mendelsohn with soprano solo by Mrs. Oscar DeReschke; "Calm as the Night," by Carl Bohm, and two choruses from "The Messiah" by Handel, "And the Glory of the Lord," and "Hallelujah."

The orchestra will play "Country Gardens" by Percy Grainger and the Eight Hand Club represented by Henri Salz, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Thornburg and Miss Marcella Norris, overture, "Der Freischutz," by C. M. Von Weber. Mrs. Catherine G. Brownell will sing "The Nile" by Xavier Leroux with violin obligato by Edward J. White and Richard M. Coughlin at the piano.

This same program will be repeated at Livermore on Jan. 23, at Pleasanton on Jan. 30, and at Hayward on Feb. 6.

SPORTSMEN'S CLUB MAKES RELEASE OF BIRDS IN TOWNSHIP

CENTERVILLE—The Washington Township Sportsmen made their first release of 20 pheasants in the township last week after keeping the birds in pens at Irvington. Ben Kramer has had charge of the brooder pens and other birds are expected from the State Game Farm at Yountville.

New officers installed at a recent meeting are Kenneth Ferry, president; Manuel Soito, vice president; Ben Kramer, secretary; Will Bettencourt, treasurer and Joe Duarte, sergeant at arms. Refreshments were served at Kleine's restaurant following the meeting. The next meeting will be held on Jan. 18.

JUNIOR CHAMBER TO INSTALL JAN. 23

NILES—Officers of the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce will be installed at ceremonies to follow a dinner meeting at the Florence Restaurant on Jan. 23. Fred Duffie will succeed Lewis Lewis as president.

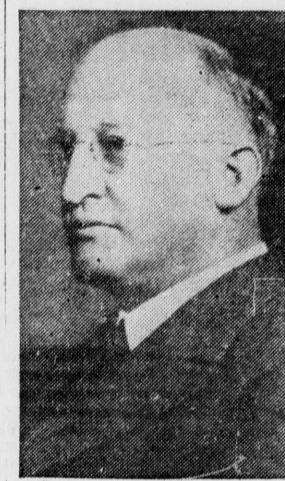

Arrangements for the affair are being made by Lawrence Sharpe and Dr. T. C. Wilson.

Neighbors and friends are sponsoring the affair, the total proceeds of which will be turned over to the stricken family. Wilbur Bettencourt (no relation) is chairman and sub-chairmen include Mrs. Wilbur Bettencourt, Mrs. Janice Silva Reina and Mrs. D. Gastelum.

George Mathiesen will act as treasurer and all funds will be deposited at the Centerville Bank of America where they will be audited and publicly reported before being turned over to the beneficiaries.

The public is invited to attend the whist party at which scores of prizes are being offered. It is expected to be the largest party ever given in the township and is being managed by committees which recently put on a party for the Washington Township Sportsmen attended by nearly 1,000 people. Tickets will be on sale this week.

Rotary Chief

JOSEPH N. BORROUGHS

District Governor Will Pay Official Visit To Niles Club

NILES—The Niles Rotary Club is preparing for the official visit of Joseph N. Borroughs, District Governor, and an official of Rotary International, Thursday, January 19, at which time there will be held a regular noon luncheon, with an assembly of the officers in the evening.

Borroughs, a member of the Rotary Club of Oakland, was elected District Governor at the time of the San Francisco International Convention last June. He was born in Orland, Glenn County, California. Among the first experiences in business on his own was in Reno, Nevada, but, since 1904 he has been president and general manager of the Oakland California Towel Company.

He has record of 29 years of active Rotary service in the Oakland club in which he served two years as secretary, one as president and total of five years on the board of directors, and is well equipped for the office of District Governor, which brings him into contact with the clubs of this district in an advisory capacity.

In the evening he will meet with President Dr. Thomas C. Williamson, Secretary Richard C. Attinger, the board of directors and the committee chairmen of the Niles club, to discuss any problems that may have arisen or that may arise in the year to come. At the regular weekly luncheon he will bring to the members who do not have the opportunity to attend the conventions and conferences, Rotary International in its largest aspects.

District 105 consisting of 45 clubs, is one of the largest of Rotary International, which numbers 4852 clubs and over 200,000 Rotarians.

The Rotary club was formed in this city on account of the desire of the international organization to have itself properly represented in every worthwhile community.

The club seeks to cooperate with the several activities and needs of the community, both as a unit and through its individual members.

Hogs From Projects Are Sold At Profit By Future Farmers

CENTERVILLE—Sales of purebred hogs by Washington Union High School Future Farmers to out of township buyers was reported last week by Paul Dougherty, instructor.

John Soares of Alvarado and George Nemoto of Newark sold $165 worth of purebred Poland China and Duroc hogs for breeding purposes. Three of the sows were bought at $9 each and sold for $35 each after they had supplied litters of pigs now worth $200.

Entries in the Junior Live Stock show to be held on Treasure Island in connection with the Golden Gate Exposition April 2, will be made by Washington Future Farmers.

Among the new projects are purebred Duroc feeder pigs of Albert and Richard Maciel and John Wallman of Centerville and Louis Sessa of Newark; a purebred Duroc sow of Roy Rose of Niles, a purebred Poland sow of Edwin McNamara and a Duroc sow of Joseph Telles of Mission San Jose. William Borba is feeding three purebred Poland China barrows and one purebred China gilt. The barrows will be exhibited in the Treasure Island show and the gilt will be used for a brood matron.

The recent annual report to the regional supervisor indicated 68 Future Farmers in this section engaged in home farming programs. The most popular single enterprise was young dairy stock. Seventeen boys had projects in this field, raising 19 breeding animals and 11 veal for market. Three of the breeding animals were registered Holsteins.

TRAFFIC CASES SHOW INCREASE FOR YEAR IN NILES COURT

NILES—Judge J. A. Silva closed his register of traffic cases for the past six months with a total of 521 cases as compared with 465 cases for the same period in 1937.

Of the 521 traffic offenders appearing since last July, 11 were drunk drivers. Ten drunk drivers appeared during the same period in 1937.

Check-up showed that a drive carried on during the past three months by the California State Highway Patrol against drivers without licenses netted 184 such offenders since July 1, 1938. Most of these were brought in on charges of speeding, failure to stop at boulevard signs and minor traffic violations and proved to have no operator's license.

For the next six months, traffic cases will be heard before Judge Allen G. Norris at Centerville.

S. P. R. S. I. WELCOMES
GRAND PRESIDENT

WARM SPRINGS—Council No. 84, S. P. R. S. I. will hold a meeting at 2 p. m. on Thursday, Jan. 19, at the Warm Springs School auditorium for the official visit of the grand president, Mrs. Figuerido. Refreshments will be served.

Preparedness of U.S. Industry Regarded as Key to Security

Strategic Product Shortage Draws Attention of Military Men.

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

The "peace" of Munich and the undeclared war in China reflect a general ferment of unrest in Europe and Asia which may momentarily flare up into a greater World War. This is the situation which has stimulated American efforts to assure both territorial and economic security.

While the balance of power in Europe as well as in Asia appears to make the contingency of territorial aggression against the United States remote, both army and navy have advocated a program of reasonable expansion in their departments and the extent of this expansion will be a major subject of debate at this session of congress.

Less spectacular but even more basic is the need for adjusting the capacity of American industry to war materials production and accumulation of raw material supplies which might be cut off from us in the event of a European or Asiatic conflagration. Industry has to a limited extent prepared itself but has a long way to go yet.

There are, according to the assistant secretary of war, approximately 55 items needed in war time which are so difficult of production, so different from ordinary peace-time needs, that industry will not be able to go into production of them without some "education." And the last congress provided funds for the purpose of giving "educational orders" for the manufacture of only six of these items.

The average voter does not realize that mobilization applies not only to men and battleships, but to plants and machines, skilled labor, power, transportation, raw materials and financing.

Preparation for Peace.

It is significant that for the first time in the history of the United States the war department is, through preparation of an "educational orders" program, anticipating war well in advance of the unpleasant fact. This does not mean the United States is preparing to go to war; on the contrary, it is preparing to keep out of war if possible. So doing, it is merely following cautiously in the footsteps of those dictator nations which for a decade have bent nearly all economic effort to the furtherance of one ultimate aim—the efficient functioning of an army in the field.

Plants and machines cannot be the navy department, it is estimated, must be increased from the present level of 72,000 to 100,000 by 1942 in order to keep pace with building. There is today a definite shortage in technical specialized ship-building trades of naval architects, marine engineers, mold loftsmen, shipfitters, coppersmiths and so on.

From Toys to Bombs.

Initial investigation of about 10,000 factories, which has been carried out by the government, constitutes only the beginning of a gigantic task which will prepare America for production of those war materials which it lacks and which it may have to produce in a hurry—bombs sights for planes, canisters for gas masks, demolition bombs and fuses, 37-mm guns, more and heavier tanks, semi-automatic rifles, light machine guns, trench mortars, gas masks (there are only eight gas masks for every hundred men in the national guard today), 105 mm. howitzers, 8-inch howitzers, motor cars, motor trucks, and so on.

Locomotive factories must prepare to produce 155-mm shells, and makers of toy trains must be trained to manufacture gas mask parts. Factories all over the nation must make artillery shells instead of plumbing fixtures, leather leggings instead of baby shoes, shell fuses instead of radios, baversacks instead of handbags, bombs instead of immediately turned to production of war materials in the event of an emergency. America has excellent machines and excellent mechanics to run them, but an army tank cannot be ordered one day and secured the next. Special skills are required for munitions manufacture. The man who does the work of checking the breach end of a 75-mm howitzer with a "concentricity thread ring gauge," which measures down to one ten-thousandths of an inch, for example, needs five years of special training. Other special jobs require training periods of between one and four years.

America has no extensive munitions industry at the present time. Today the army manufactures most of its munitions in its seven arsenals, which supply little more than 5 per cent of wartime needs. And there is a great lack of skilled labor. During the depression few apprentices were trained; manufacturers today, faced with the prospect of munitions orders, say they are unable even to secure men to manufacture the necessary tools.

An essential part of the tremendous naval building program must be a program of "in-service" training to provide skilled shipbuilders. The number of civil employees of toys, submarine mines instead of steel safes, airplane metal stampings instead of pots and pans, cartridges instead of washing machines.

In order to "educate" industry for these necessary changes, congress at the last session authorized a five-year $10,000,000 program of "educational orders." Extension of this program is regarded by the war department as essential.

The very foundation of a preparedness program is the supply of raw materials upon which the country must depend for production of all kinds of articles from gas masks to rifles; more than ever before in the history of the world the problem of national defense is an industrial problem, and raw material is the keystone of industry.

Arms Budget Increased.

Current publicity has familiarized the man in the street with trends in rearmament. Index of the program is seen in unofficial estimates which place the national defense budget for the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1939, at about $1,300,000,000, or an increase of about $250,000 over the preceding year.

The building program is at least outlined. The new congress may authorize plans of the army general staff for increasing the army personnel by 3,000 men and providing equipment for an initial war force of 400,000 officers and men. The United States is building six new 35,000-ton battleships, largest ever used by this country, a new aircraft carrier, a new heavy cruiser, three light cruisers, 16 submarines, 40 destroyers and other auxiliary craft. These are to be finished products. But the ramifications of preparedness are infinite; materials are basic requirements for war industries as for any other industry.

It is generally assumed that the United States is so rich in natural resources that it can supply its own industry with great trouble—that we are prepared, in fact, for any supply emergency. This assumption is no more correct than the public belief that the army, although small, is well furnished with modern weapons and equipment, or that industry is prepared to supply immediately the additional weapons and equipment which would be required in an emergency.

As a matter of fact the war department has listed 21 "strategic" war materials for which the United States today depends wholly or partly upon foreign imports. And, in the event of a general European war, these imports might well be cut off; even trade lines between the United States and our South American neighbors might be severed.

What Was the Cyclops' Fate?

This danger is no mere theory, but well supported by fact. There was, during the World war, the classic case of the collier Cyclops, which set out from Brazil one day with 10,000 tons of manganese bound for the United States. That boat never reached its destination, and neither it nor any of its 309 passengers were ever heard from again. Perhaps it encountered a German U-boat, perhaps a mine; no one knows with certainty. And manganese is listed by the war department as strategic material number one; 14 pounds of this material are essential for the manufacture of every ton of steel and there is no known substitute.

Today the United States produces domestically less than 5 per cent of its manganese requirements. More than a third of the manganese imports to this country come from Russia; other sources are British India, the Gold Coast of Africa and Brazil. When and if war comes the seas will no longer be free; the Russian and Indian sources of manganese would almost immediately be cut off from us, and the Gold Coast is 4,600 miles away. The Brazilian source was once cut off as we have seen, and may be again.

While the United States has manganese ore resources in 20 states, they are largely undeveloped. Under the stimulus of war from 1914 to 1918, domestic output jumped from 2,635 tons to 305,669 tons, but production fell off again in 1919 and has remained almost negligible ever since.

Processing methods have since been developed, one of the most effective of which has been applied to the production of ore from the Cuban deposits of the Cuban-American manganese company. The army sees the Cuban ores as an important reserve since shipments from that country would not be subject to interruption in an emergency.

Miller-Case Plan Up.

Both army and navy are strongly behind a plan to build up a stock pile of a million tons of processed manganese ore and opinion is growing for the removal of manganese from the list of commodities on which tariffs were reduced by reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations. This plan is embodied in the Miller bill introduced at the last congress and the Miller-Case concurrent resolution. It is anticipated that the plan will be presented again to congress at the session just starting.

Important point in the preparedness program so far initiated is the plan to provide reserves of strategic war materials, and doubtless congress will reconsider as part of a general industrial mobilization plan legislation which was first introduced last spring seeking authorization for the army and navy to acquire, over a four-year period, $100,000,000 worth of essential minerals, and providing that domestic producers be favored in these purchases.

If this plan is reconsidered, and adopted in its present or an amended form, an important step will have been taken in assuring for the United States continued supplies of materials on the list of which manganese is only one. There are chromite, mica, quinine, tungsten, aluminum, antimony, coconut shells (used for carbon filters in gas masks), tin, wool, coffee, silk, hides, sisal, nickel, opium, mercury, iodine, optical glass, manila fiber and rubber.

Non-spectacular objective of this plan, as explained by Sen. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, is to obtain a sounder type of "raw materials insurance" than can be attained by simple stock-piling foreign purchases of ores—a procedure which would not solve the problem in the event of a protracted emergency.

CHAFFEE, MO. — The star player on Chaffee high school's football team is 17-year-old Archie Tom Smiley, who without hands and with but one eye has become the team's best blocker. He frequently carries the ball.

Smiley lost both of his hands and his right eye in a Fourth of July explosion.

A REAL GOLD BRICK IS POLICE PUZZLE

Loot Is Found Melted Into Precious Ingot.

FLORENCE.—An ingot of pure gold has baffled Italian police and hampered the liquidation of two cases of robbery perpetrated here last summer.

Several months ago a band of thieves broke into Villa Marmaglano, mansion of Mrs. Beulah Branch, widow of a Chicago banker, for many years a resident of Florence. They carried off money, silverware and jewels with a total value of more than $100,000.

A short time later another theft, the traces of which had strange resemblance to the one at Villa Marmaglano, occurred in the palace of Goffredo Visconti, an eccentric 90-year-old multimillionaire of Florence.

Police put their ablest detectives on the case and after four months arrested a prominent jeweler, Sestilio Giannini, of Florence on charges of receiving stolen goods.

Following Giannini's confession police captured Otelio Balzani, leader of a band of half a dozen thieves, including his 26-year-old mistress, Valeria Uccifati. Police have rounded up the entire band, which now is awaiting trial in the Murate jail of Florence.

In the home of a member of the band, Angiolo Cini, police found an ingot of pure gold weighing about 350 grams.

Cini confessed that part of the gold bracelets and earrings stolen from Villa Marmaglano had been melted together with rings and other jewels stolen from Visconti's home.

Mrs. Branch's jewels were recovered in part in Giannini's shop, but a diamond ring worth $10,000 and a pearl necklace of greater value have not been found.

Police have not reached any decision regarding the gold ingot, which perhaps will be equally divided between the American widow and the aged Visconti.

How did you evade Maine?" asked the judge.

"Maine was too small," Sharun replied, adding, "but you can take it from me that crime does not pay."

Sharun and his two accomplices had been sentenced to 2 to 14 years in prison for mulcting $6,000 from Ben I. Schultz, a Gary, Ind., junk dealer. Schultz told the court that Sharun told him he had a scheme to "break" all small race-horse hands.

Sharun left a farm in Daviess county Ind., and eventually became a clever "con" man.

In a small cell, Sharun leaned back and talked smoothly.

"I never took an honest man. I always took a sucker and never felt sorry for them because they were trying to get something for nothing too."

Stanford U. Parties Are Easy Prey for Bandits

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, CALIF.—The practice of campus police men flashlight petting parties is driving romance off the campus of Stanford university and out into the neighborhood hills where couples become the victims of petting party bandits, according to protests now being made by scores of coeds.

An unusual number of these holdups has taken place recently, and as the bandits rob the girls as well as the men, it is the coed element that has taken up the task of remediating the situation.

Stanford this year has only 500 coeds against 3,000 men students with the results that the girls are dated up almost every evening.

Whale Aids Hospital

EDINBURGH.—Left by the tide on Trent bank, near Scunthorpe, a whale weighing three and one-half tons was bought from the customs authorities for $2.50 by William Starkey. The whale was then placed on exhibition and the proceeds donated to Scunthorpe hospital.

Bug in Ear 26 Years

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.—Somebody literally must have put a bug in Mrs. Lizzie Metcalfe's ear 26 years ago. A recent X-ray examination revealed the insect in a good state of preservation. Mrs. Metcalfe said she had been having trouble with her ear since 1912.

Colt Runs Like Deer

OVID, N. Y.—"What is it," a freak colt that looks something like a mule and runs more like a deer, frolics on Leon C. Wickham's farm.

CROOK, DISGUISED, TOURS WORLD AS POLICE HUNT HIM

Spiro, $3,000,000 Swindler, Gets Eight Years Penal Service in England.

LONDON.—After having, by a series of disguises, eluded for 13 months the police of eight countries and toured the world a hunted man, Stanley Grove Spiro has been sentenced in the Old Bailey, London, to eight years' penal servitude, for stock swindling involving $3,000,000.

A man called Graham—his real name is Strakosch—is, it was stated in court, being hunted in the United States after absconding from extradition proceedings. Except for this fugitive, all Spiro's accomplices have been rounded up.

"Brains of a band of commercial brigands," the Recorder called Spiro, adding that he was the head of a society that made war on the community by elaborately planned activities.

Never Robbed Poor.

The convicted man made no comment. His boast has been that he had never robbed widows or the poor, and to a reporter of the London Daily Express he had said:

"I have walked on the shady side of the street of finance too long to complain about what is coming to me. I have had the sweets for a long, long time. I can take the now."

Stanley Spiro, who was born in South Africa 42 years ago, married the daughter of a canon of the Church of England. She died of cancer in Switzerland a few months ago. She knew he was the head of several companies, but nothing whatever of his crooked transactions.

His fraud was simple. He bought an old-established Scottish brokers' business and opened a London office. This gave him 500 clients—wealthy people—who had trusted the firm for half a century. Spiro used the good Scottish name of Elphinstone. Later, he was "Mr. Royston," sometimes "Mr. Richards," occasionally "Mr. Mortimer."

With his clients he always first did legitimate business. Then he induced them to part with valuable securities and receive in return shares that were worthless.

Puzzled by Success.

Spiro founded a worthless concern called Scottish Gas Utilities corporation and a ciblery company. Their shares were exchanged for real securities. Yet Spiro was puzzled by his own success as a seller of shares to shrewd and hard-headed business men.

His own story of how, while the police of all countries were on the lookout for him, he escaped detection, follows:

"I eluded the police with a six-inch beard and a perfect-fitting wig. And I was a hunchback at times." (Here he slouched up his shoulders.) "And my stomach came out to here." (Here he held his hands a foot from his waistcoat.)

"I got my hunchback and my stomach in Berlin. I had them made for me. They were of paper-mache. There were straps on the hunchback so that I could fasten it round my shoulders, and there were straps for the stomach, too.

"No one would ever have known me when I was wearing them. I walked into England—right under the noses of two special who were watching me. Right under their noses, boy!—that gave me a thrill.

"I was arrested three times while I was away. Once in Mexico, once in Germany and again in Austria. I had no passport or papers. Each time I talked myself out of it. I never crossed a frontier by train. I always walked across—slipped in unnoticed."

Finds He Slept for Two Nights With Dead Man

TOLEDO, OHIO.—Police here investigated the story of a 53-year-old man who said that he had slept in bed with a friend for two nights without knowing that the man was dead.

The first night he noticed nothing unusual, he related, and when he came home and went to bed the second night, he still thought nothing was amiss although his friend had not moved.

At the end of the second day, he tried to awaken the "sleeping" man. He failed, and called police to whom he told his story.

Deputy Coroner A. H. Steinberg said the man had died of natural causes and probably had been dead 48 hours.

Hopkins will be confirmed, but there will be considerable pelting first... Barkley, senate leader, in somewhat of a dilemma... Presidential politics likely to complicate national defense situation.

WASHINGTON.—Individual senators and representatives, and for that matter congress as a whole, would like to throw the White House rubber stamp in the wastebasket, this session, but the Democratic majorities—still large in both house and senate despite the slaughter on last election day—do not want to throw away with it the key to continuance in power, and to patronage.

The real question is just how many White House recommendations Capitol Hill can kick around without upsetting the applecart of individual house and senate members in their own renomination and re-election campaigns. It will be rather a nice question of judgment, in many instances, particularly for the large southern conservative bloc, and for northern and western Democrats who for one reason or another do not like Franklin D. Roosevelt, or the New Deal, or the particular New Dealers who are close to the throne.

The hearings that are to come on the confirmation of Harry L. Hopkins will be rather revealing in this connection. Hopkins has not too many friends on Capitol Hill. And some of his best friends and warmest supporters may not be inclined to get their fingers burned too badly in defending him. Not that there is any real question, at the moment, of Hopkins' being confirmed. He will be. But there will be considerable pelting first.

For instance, consider the dilemma that will confront the Democratic leader of the senate, Alben Barkley, who fought to the death on the floor of the senate last spring to prevent any hamstringing of the political activities of the WPA under Hopkins, and who benefited by the political support of WPA in his fight for renomination probably more than any other candidate in 1938.

Barkley Was Hurt Pretty Badly by WPA Business

But the consensus is that Barkley was hurt pretty badly—as far as his reputation outside Kentucky is concerned—by that WPA business. If Barkley were not, in his own heart, a candidate for the presidency in 1940, he could afford a renewal of the scandal. But as it stands Barkley would like the country to forget how, on the floor of the senate, he defended the use of WPA in politics because it was necessary to meet the use of state employees on the other side.

It will be found, unless a good many minds change between now and then, that few stones will be put in the path of those who wish to do a lot of dirty linen washing over Hopkins' confirmation. At least few stones will be put there by senators. The White House, of course, and Hopkins' host of friends in the left wing of the New Deal, will try to move heaven and earth. However, there is no indication that anyone around the senate will pay much attention to efforts that Harold Ickes, Tommy Corcoran and Ben Cohen may make to protect their friend.

Even the senators who are still for the President do not all like his left wing lieutenants. There is the question of believing the best Democratic strategy, looking toward 1940, is for a slight turn to the right, as predicted by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. There is the old fact of human nature that loyalty lies to the king, but not to the king's ministers.

Alcohol as Substitute For Gasoline Is Up Again

Agitation for substitution of alcohol—in part—for gasoline, and thus providing a largely increased market for corn, is with us again, but is not likely to get anywhere.

On the surface the idea is very appealing. Farmers could turn from other crops to corn, thus relieving not only the corn-hog surplus, but also the surplus in the other crops from which the farmers would turn to corn. It is easy to figure out, from department of agriculture figures, that virtually all the overproduction of farm crops in the country would thus be ended.

This would eliminate the $400,000,000 a year now being paid farmers not to raise specific crops.

According to the bureau of chemistry and soils, and this finding is supported by an impartial survey which is soon to be published in detail, the idea is not so sound economically as might be expected. In the first place, the survey establishes, to its own satisfaction at least, that blending the proposed quantity of corn-produced alcohol with gasoline would make the cost of this mixture two cents a gallon more than gasoline. This, it is estimated, would cost $440,000,000 a year, which might be financed either by increasing the price of gasoline to consumers or by the government's subsidizing the whole move in the interest of agriculture.

Assuming the latter, the government would be only $40,000,000 in the red by the operation as compared with present farm subsidies. But that is only part of the picture. In the first place the government might have to come to the relief of the oil industry.

Motor-Car and Truck Users

Would Let Out Big Howl

Again, the idle capacity of the alcohol industry, which is about 250,000,000 gallons a year, is only one-tenth of what would be necessary to supply a 10 per cent blend of alcohol and gasoline for the motorists. So a capital investment of some $300,000,000 would be required to provide the necessary facilities.

Then it would seem likely that the motor-car and truck users of the nation would let out plenty of complaints if the proposed blend were forced on them by government fiat.

A road test was conducted this year by the American Automobile Association, in co-operation with the U. S. Bureau of standards. This revealed that the proposed 10 per cent alcohol blend would be nearly 5 per cent less efficient than straight gasoline.

What the big trucking companies would have to say about this can be imagined, and it so happens that for some time they have been organized, politically, and need to say would make their views known on Capitol Hill.

Politics May Complicate National Defense Problem

Presidential politics promises to complicate the national defense situation amazingly. Actually the fight will be led on the one side by Louis A. Johnson, assistant secretary of war, and on the other by Sen. Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri.

Johnson will fight for prodigious appropriations and authorizations. For example, he wants 10,000 airplanes—for the army alone. Of these he figures about 3,500 will be necessary for training, so that the 10,000 would yield a net of only 6,500 fighting planes.

Clark will lead the fight against any such heavy appropriations. He will demand: Why are they necessary? What good will they be after a couple of years when they are obsolete? And so on down the line.

The interesting part of the situation is that neither of the two men, who will thus be limelighted, before January is over, as the champions of the two sides are President Roosevelt's own choice for his successor in the White House, and yet both will use this fight as the stepping stone toward that big job.

Shrewd observers figure that no matter how important Harry L. Hopkins may make his job as secretary of commerce it will be completely blanketed, as far as publicity is concerned, by national defense. In fact, some point out, the better job Hopkins does as secretary of commerce, the less publicity he will get. It isn't a page-one story to do something to smooth the path of business, or to lighten its load. But it's a first-page story to scare the country about the possibility of the dictators coming over here, from Johnson's angle, and it's also a first-page story to attack the munitions makers as inspiring all the ballyhoo for national defense, heavier taxes, and endangering getting this country into war—especially the latter. And that will be Clark's bid for the spotlight.

Widespread Feeling for More National Defense

On the whole, congress is willing to go very far with the President on national defense. It doesn't think very much of the contention that this would provide employment, and therefore, lighten the relief burden. In fact congress will be told that the chief limit on the amount of money that can be spent for national defense is the scarcity of skilled mechanics. Unemployed, more or less shiftless individuals can be of little use in an armament program. And actually the shipyards, the gun plants, and the airplane factories are all reporting that they are having the greatest difficulty in getting the men they need right now.

As a matter of fact, it is common knowledge in Washington that the navy would like to put a great many more men to work immediately in its gun factory, but simply cannot get properly trained men.

But congress on the whole is for more national defense. More sections of the country are aroused than ever before. Congressmen will be found voting for big defense appropriations who a few years ago were regarded as staunch little navy men, if not pacifists. The reason is simple. Their districts have changed, and they are voting in accord with the new sentiment.

According to the bureau of chemistry and soils, and this finding is supported by an impartial survey which is soon to be published in detail, the idea is not so sound eco-

HEALTH

• Defensive tissues of body can usually overcome troublesome organisms.

By Dr. James W. Barton

NOSE specialists tell us that if the lining of the nose is in a healthy condition, it can prevent harmful organisms in the air from entering the body and setting up diseases. This moist or mucous lining can get rid of a group of organisms from the system and be ready for a new lot within 10 minutes. Similarly other tissues in the body and the blood itself, by putting up a daily fight against various organisms, gradually get the mastery over these organisms. The tissues and blood become "immune" or proof against the ailments these various organisms would set up in the body if there were no resistance to them.

"Most of the tissues of a healthy individual can have an immunity or can withstand the majority of organisms and destroy them when they gain entrance to the system. Should such organisms find lodgment in the tissues, they frequently prove harmless to the individual. Even when they enter the blood stream both the organisms and the poisons they make usually are rapidly destroyed by the blood."

Forces May Be Weakened.

Professor Myer Solis-Cohen, University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine, as guest editor of Medical World tells us that this defensive power of the tissues and the blood may continue intact for years. This defensive power of the body may be lost when the invading organisms are excessive in number or become increased in their power to destroy tissue, or when the individual's local or general resistance is reduced or broken down completely through exposure, physical or mental fatigue, inadequate diet, bad hygiene, a new infection, or a rundown condition. Thus the organism which has been resting harmlessly in the body begins to acquire the ability to cause damage and infection.

The point then is that even if we are in good condition physically, there may be certain organisms that can set up trouble in the body because our defensive forces have not had this particular organism to fight and overcome up to this time. But even should they attack us, if we are in good physical condition—heart, lungs, kidneys and digestive system—and no other affection such as in teeth, tonsils or sinus is present, we can usually put up a fight strong enough to overcome them.

Sinus May Cause Colds in Children

There are some youngsters who seem always to have a cold. In schools where there is a school nurse with a physician visiting at regular intervals, it is often a problem as to whether to allow the child to remain at school or be sent home until the cold clears up.

As a matter of fact, when the child seems always to have a cold, the trouble is often in one of the sinuses adjoining the nose, usually the one in the upper jaw—the antrum. This sinus appears to be always ready to start trouble should the youngster be exposed to a draft, to dampness or become real tired or fatigued.

The lining of the sinus becomes inflamed and at first there is just a light mucus followed later by a thick mucus, and in some cases, by pus formation. This mucus or pus drops down into the back of the throat and is coughed out.

Causes of Sinusitis.

Dr. James Crooks, in the British Medical Journal, gives the signs and symptoms of these chronic cases of sinusitis: 1. Discharge of mucus or pus from the nose. 2. Frequent colds. 3. Cough. 4. Snoring and mouth breathing. 5. Sore throats. 6. Headaches. Inflammation of the middle ear and general weakness or disability are often present. Examinations of the nose, lighting up the sinus by a special lamp and taking an X-ray picture may also be done to make sure that the frequent colds are really due to an inflamed sinus.

The treatment of chronic sinusitis is first to try to prevent the conditions that start or light up the trouble. "Colds must be avoided by improving hygiene and general health and resistance." When the colds occur, the lining of the nose must be shrunk so that the opening from the sinus into the nose remains open. This shrinking is done with adrenaline, epinephrine or by ephedrine (the Chinese drug), or by a benzodrine inhaler.

Operation for this condition is not done as often now. Operation is performed only when the discharge has turned to pus which continues to form despite the shrinking of the nose lining and the washing out of the sinus.

TOM MOONEY GOES FREE

It's up to Tom Mooney now! The world's most famous prisoner has at last received his unconditional pardon, and the white-haired warrior of many of California's pre-war Labor struggles is again a free man.

The freedom that is now Tom Mooney's places in his hands a finer chance to prove to California and the American public his right to that freedom than ever he had behind the walls of San Quentin.

During the 22 years of his imprisonment, Mooney became the focal point of Labor demonstrations throughout the world, a source of great comfort to the more radical elements hungry for proof of "capitalist persecution," and a source of disappointment to those who believed a great injustice had been done.

The temper of the American people, as indicated in a recent nationwide Gallup poll, expressed itself as strongly in favor of a pardon for Mooney. That desire has today been accomplished, and a long-standing source of disaffection and agitation removed.

Governor Olson's pardon has voiced the will of the majority, and the world's most famous prisoner is a free man. It's up to Tom Mooney now!

COLLEGIATES WILL FURNISH ENTERTAINMENT AT COLUMBIA GRILL

NILES—W. Marsh and his four Collegians, direct from the U. C. campus at Berkeley, have been secured for a two-night engagement of orchestra music and a variety entertainment of popular songs and individual numbers, at the Columbia Grill Saturday and Sunday nights.

The musicians handle the piano, drums, saxophone, trumpet, guitar and trombone to complete satisfaction. Miss Barbara Norman, who has filled engagements as entertainer in some of the larger hotels of the bay cities, will sing popular numbers at the microphone. She is described as genial and vivacious.

An evening of music, dancing and fun is promised on both of the days, as well as complete restaurant service.

Irvington Jaysees
Nominate Officers
And Plan Activity

IRVINGTON — Nomination of officers and several other matters of importance was taken up at this week's meeting of the Irvington Junior Chamber of Commerce. Edward L. Rose was asked to contact an attorney regarding procedure for incorporation of the chamber. Plans were made for a ladies' night dinner dance to celebrate the third anniversary of the organization to be held on Feb. 18. Al Monese and Oliver Campos were made chairmen to arrange this affair.

New officers nominated are Bill Rose, president; Al Monese, vice-president; Wayne Day, secretary; Edward L. Rose, treasurer; Jack Prouty, Oliver Campos, Vernon Leal, J. R. Silveira, Leonard Freitas, directors. Nominations will be kept open till next meeting on Jan. 23, at which time a stag dinner will be given. Officers will be elected and installed at this time with Joe Corey, chairman of arrangements.

Al Monese was asked to contact Supervisor George Hellwig regarding safety highway signs in front of the grammar school to slow up traffic at this point. Wayne Day reported on the Christmas tree lighting and the secretary was told to see Supervisor Hellwig regarding a new voting booth.

An order was given for 2,000 auto stickers to advertise Irvington along with the Golden Gate Exposition. Berkeley Green was put in charge of this project.

A. Silva at the Niles Justice Court this afternoon.

The rings were to have been presented to Horton's fiance, Mary Berganiano, sister of Peter. According to Deputy Sheriff Henry Vervais who investigated with Grover Mull, of the sheriff's office, the rings were said by Horton to be in the cook house while he was visiting at the home of his fiance and were stolen at that time on New Year's Eve.

The rings were later located at a second hand store in Oakland where Berganiano is said to have sold them for $5.

"Well, well," said Herrick. "And who ever heard of two guests abusing their host at table until he's carried away and then getting down to his brandy and having a rubber of bridge? You know it's blasphemous. I don't believe the Borgias ever did that. And I'll lay off Percy's got ear-ache. 'Three swine to one pearl.'"

I forgot what answer I made, but I know I sent Winter to bed and, after two or three minutes, went up to my room. But I did not intend to sleep: for the "pearl" was out of my sight.

I had seen her into her suite 20 minutes before. I trusted to see her come out in a little less than eight hours. But I had no faith in Elsa, and—Virgil had his back to the wall. Had there been but one door to her suite, I would have slept across it. But there were four doors to her suite, and one was outside. I could not so much as watch them: Argus himself could have watched but one at a time.

I took off my coat and lighted a cigarette . . .

As I threw the match out of the window, somebody knocked at my door.

I was at the oak in a flash, to find Winter standing without, with a key in his hand.

"I forgot to tell you, sir." He entered and shut the door. "You gave me this key and told me to lock up the Rolls. Her doors, I mean. But I haven't been able to, because this isn't the key."

"Isn't the key?" I said, frowning, and with that I took it out of his hand.

"It isn't, indeed, sir. I tried it again and again."

"But . . ."

And there I stopped dead—with my eyes on the key I was holding between my finger and thumb.

Winter was right. This was not the key of the Rolls. Although she did not know it, Elizabeth Virgil had the key of the Rolls. I had handed it to her on Friday, with the rest of her things. It was now, perhaps, under her pillow. But this was her master key . . . that fitted all five of her locks.

CHAPTER IX

Whilst I changed, I gave Winter his orders. These were, in short, to pass the night on the landing, watching the door which gave to Elizabeth's suite.

"If anyone tries to enter, put your torch on his face and hold him up. The door may be opened for him; but I don't like Elsa's face, and he's not to go in. When you've got him, lift up your voice and shout my name, and I'll be with you before you know where you are. I shall be in the staircase-turret, closely watching the other door of her ladyship's rooms."

"And if you want me, sir?" said Winter.

"I'll call her ladyship. She'll let me through her suite and to the stairs. I don't think anything will happen, and for Elsa, I'd tell you to go to bed. But it's thanks to me that she is inside that suite, so it's up to me to see that she does no harm."

And there I remembered Elgar, the man for whom Virgil had called when we had escaped from the tower. I had learned from Elizabeth that he was Virgil's chauffeur and was as much trusted by his master as he was distrusted by everyone else at Brie.

But when I mentioned his name—"He's away just now," said Winter, "with Mr. Virgil's car. There's a knock in the engine or something they can't get right."

"So much the better," said I, and spoke as I thought.

And that, I think, shows how ill equipped I was to deal with a man of Virgil's capacity, for I should at once have suspected the absence of his chauffeur and car. But I am ashamed to say that it did not occur to me that, if there is work of a certain kind to be done, the lugger will take an offing, instead of staying in port. Be that as it may, I read the danger-signal as being a piece of good news: then I took up my pistol and torch, and we left the tower.

To post Winter took but a moment; and then I was treading the steps down which I had knocked the servant six days before. My shoes were rubber-soled, and I made no sound, but, as I have said before, the well of the staircase was lit, and the first floor, to which I was going, was very much better illuminated than was the landing above. Still, there were shadows enough about, and I carefully kept to the wall.

As luck would have it, I knew the whole of my way. I was not going down to the hall: I was bound for the picture-gallery, where we had gathered that evening, before dinner was served. This lay upon the first floor—a fine, long room, and its range of windows was broken into three bays by two of the staircase-turrets with which the castle was served. And the first of these, I knew, was Elizabeth's own—I had seen her come out of its door at a quarter past eight.

Using the greatest caution, I left the magnificent staircase and stole to the gallery's doors. Happily, these were open, but here the darkness was thick, so I put to the doors behind me and drew my torch. And there my luck went out, for the torch I found to be useless. It was dead.

Now I could, of course, have gone back: but, since Winter needed his torch, it meant going back or sending him back to my room: so I made up my mind to go on, because, though I should have liked it, I could tread upon Virgil's toes without seeing his face.

The gallery seemed broader than I had thought, but at length I was touching the curtains, which had been drawn. At once I turned to the left, for now I had found the windows, I had to do no more than follow their line along. And because I had my bearings, perhaps I moved with less care than I should have shown. In any event, I had almost come to the door, when I stepped, yet was complete in itself. An electric light was burning where passage and stairway met, thus lighting the steps up and down as well as the passage itself.

I leaned against the wall and heaved a sigh of relief. Harp or no harp, I had gained the position I sought, and Winter and I between us commanded Elizabeth's suite. If . . .

And there I heard a girl laugh . . . a stifled, mischievous laugh . . . to tell me she knew I was there. It was Elsa, of course. I knew that. She must have heard the harp fall and have left Elizabeth's suite to see what the matter might be. And then she had seen the door open and, probably, me come in.

There was only one thing to be done.

"Is that you, Elsa?" I said, and stepped to the curling stair.

Looking up, I saw her standing, point-device as ever, back to the wall.

Then somebody standing behind me laid me out.

The first thing that I remembered was Percy Virgil's voice.

As I lifted my head, he spoke, and a gag was clapped into my teeth, yet was complete in itself. An electric light was burning where passage and stairway met, thus lighting the steps up and down as well as the passage itself.

Wise and Otherwise

In fishing for compliments you must use live bait.

Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today. There may be a law against it tomorrow.

One thing that can't be preserved in alcohol is dignity.

A man has left an estate consisting of hundreds of old clocks. It will take some winding up.

Philatelists are easy to recognize, I'm told. Men after the same stamp?

Even if the government doesn't raise our income tax, we'll have to.

Tough Problem

The servant "problem" exists in some form or another the world over.

In Egypt, for example, the best cooks, who are men, rule their households and employers with an iron hand. Woe betides the mistress who does not permit the cook to buy all the food for the family larder—a custom, incidentally, which permits him to get a "rake-off" from the shopkeepers.

Recently an English army officer's wife, stationed in Cairo, forgot this custom and bought some very tender chickens herself for a special dinner. The cook said nothing, but at mealtime said some extremely old and tough roosters graced the table.

The native cook, simulating great innocence, shrugged his shoulders and told the hostess that she might expect such treatment from the butcher as long as she did the buying.—Washington Post.

Pedestrian Is Right

Stockholm, Sweden, has decreed that the pedestrian is always right. He may step into the street without looking and will have the right of way at all times. Should a wheel so much as touch the skirt or trousers the law will deal severely with the driver.

The safety lanes must be safe for all pedestrians, and if they are not every offending motorist will be arrested. Should wheels of a car dash mud on any one on foot, the driver will be held strictly to account.

Seems It Helped Spouse To Remember to Forget

A young bride of a month was visiting a couple who had been married for many years. Her husband had just sent her flowers to commemorate the anniversary.

"Bill is so thoughtful," she exclaimed. "Do you suppose he will always remember such things?"

The host began, "Remember? The florists in this town won't let him forget. Every holiday or anniversary they call me and want me to order some flowers for my wife. They called me just a few days ago. I paid no attention to them. I knew no important day came this month, anyway."

"No, dear," answered his wife, "but yesterday was my birthday."

ONLY the stoutest heart enters a restaurant and proceeds to order filet of beef, lobster Thermidor, or even ham-and-eggs without first consulting the menu-card. For here are suggestions to set the taste-buds quiver... and prices plainly marked.

• Shopping for merchandise can be pleasantly conducted in the same manner. The advertising columns are in effect a bill-of-fare, with prices that protect as a bill-of-rights. In the leisure of your home, at the breakfast-table, you may check and choose before starting to town.

• And what a varied bill-of-fare it is! Everything your heart may desire, your home may require, and your budget may permit. Presented in a readable and interesting fashion. Sponsored by a merchant whose name you know, whose services you have come to rely upon.

• Get the advertising-reading habit. It saves time, temper, and shoe-leather, to say nothing of your hard-won cash. The advertiser's word is as good as his bond. On no other basis could he hope to hold your custom.

OAKLAND ENTRY PLACES IN ROSE FESTIVAL PARADE

The Metropolitan Oakland Area Committee today expressed keen gratification over the success of its entry in the Annual Tournament of Roses Parade at Pasadena Jan. 2. The entry was awarded the theme prize tantamount to the second award among more than 80 entries from all sections of the Pacific Coast.

William P. St. Sure, chairman, said:

"More than $2,000 was spent on flowers to decorate the float which required nearly 500,000 blossoms. Practically all of the flowers were purchased in the Metropolitan Oakland Area, kept in cold storage and shipped to Pasadena by refrigerator express just in time to be used."

"The committee believes that the theme 'Treasure Island's Mainland' was especially valuable in calling attention to the desirability of the Metropolitan Oakland Area as the headquarters for the thousands of eastern visitors who will attend the Golden Gate International Exposition this year."

STATE SPEEDS CALIFORNIA GROUP BUILDINGS FOR FAIR!

Marking most gratifying progress on building construction and installation of exhibits the California State Commission today presents the above photograph—taken the first week in January—of a portion of the State and County Group area on Treasure Island. Shown clearly in the picture the following major buildings may be readily identified: 1. California State Building; 2. Entrance to California Court; 3. San Francisco Building; 4. Mission Trails Building; 5. San Joaquin Valley Building; 6. Alta California Building; 7. Alameda-Contra Costa Building; 8. Sacramento Valley and Tahoe Region Building; 9. Redwood Empire Building. Not within range of this picture—but well along toward completion, if not entirely finished—are: Shasta-Cascade Building (completed); Floricultural Palace; Southern Counties Building; Auditorium. State Commission engineers report that California will be ready when the curtain is raised on the Golden Gate International Exposition February 18th.

New Set of "Firsts" Being Sought By History Committee of Country Club for Washington Township Book

The History Committee of the Country Club of Washington Township finds itself facing a new set of firsts. When the previous history was published in 1904, we were as a country just emerging from the horse and buggy age. All the inventions up to that time had done little to lighten the work of women, or make it easier for them to take care of their households.

The Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893-93 led the way toward the use of electricity. It was electrically lighted, and in the building devoted to the display of the inventions up to that date, there were many things which forecast present day uses.

One of the great attractions was the electrically lighted MacMonnie fountain. People stood in great crowds around it and Oh'd and Ah'd when the colors changed. Neon signs today are a common place, as well as many other things.

While this growing use of electricity meant much to the masculine world, it meant release from hard kitchen drudgery for the feminine world and it has, in its way, contributed much to the larger part played by the women of today, not only in club matters, but in political and other fields hardly open to them in 1893-93.

Now my lady can get her dinner ready to cook, put it in the oven, set the little electric clock, and know that when she returns home some hours hence there will be no hurry or flurry about getting dinner, it is all cooked ready to serve. In fact it is her servant these days, it washes her clothes and irons them, it sweeps her floors, mixes her bread, makes her toast and coffee, keeps her food, and ventilates her home, etc. It even furnishes her with amusement, as well as lovely light which comes and goes at the snap of a button.

In the first volume we had the real pioneers, the first settlers, the first churches, the first schools, the first roads and bridges, the first railroads and stage coaches. The first vineyards and orchards, the first crops of grain and vegetables, the first dairies and factories, etc.

Now we need to know the first automobile, the first public garage, the first electric signs, the first radios, the first telephones, the first use of electricity for public lighting, the first house wired and using electricity, the first auto stages, the first use of electricity for power in turning machinery, etc.

With the coming of electricity we have a new type of houses, a new type of roads, many new industries for this great power has not stopped at invading the homes and business establishments, but has invaded the farms. Not only are there incubators in the hospitals for babies, but on the farms for baby chicks, little pigs, etc. There are electric milking machines, machines to separate the cream from the milk, even electric fences to keep the cows in the field.

Our community is in the direct path of another great machine. We go about our business calmly enough now, but a few years back we were craning our necks to see these giant birds as they wended their way through the sky. Now they make their regular flights over our heads, and we pay no more attention to them than to say perhaps, "she's on time to the dot."

It is here again that history is made, for it was at the Mission San Jose that the first electricity made its appearance in this region. It was in 1901 that the Standard Electric Light Company brought its line from the Blue Lakes of Alpine County to the brick distributing station in the Mission, from where it was picked up and distributed not only in this township, but across the bay on wooden poles.

From that date with its boast
